

HERO CHIEF OF LOST BATTALION A SUICIDE

STATE TO SETTLE COUNTY TAXES AS REPORT REVOKED

COUNTY BOARD REFUSES TO ACCEPT F. A. TAYLOR'S FIGURES.

CHANGE SCHEDULE

Appeal to be Made to Tax Commission—Row Among Supervisors.

Rock county's 1922 tax assessment will be redetermined by the Wisconsin tax commission.

The county board equalization committee, taking radical action during the session Monday, placed the assessment at Beloit at $23,500,000 and Janesville $23,040,000—a difference of $445,000, whereas under the Taylor report they were $1,000,000 apart. The change in the townships was "generally acceptable" among the supervisors.

An appeal will be made—or has been made—to the state tax authorities, following the action of the county board in tossing overboard into the briny sea of disregard the true value and equalized assessment of F. A. Taylor, state representative and supervisor of assessments. Instead of a vote of 25 to 10, the supervisors voted to place the basic valuation of Rock county at $110,000,000 and accept the assessment figures of the local township, village and city assessors.

Reports Start Fight.

While there has been instances in which the assessment figures of Assessor Taylor have been changed, this is the first time in the history of the county board that the state, where local assessor's figures were established as being final for equalization purposes.

There was a noisy wrangle over the majority and minority reports on the assessment. The knife of accusation was whetted and frequently used, with sarcasm, frequent and biting allusions to the "old" and "new" and "probable" the state and the county board.

Janesville to Appeal.

Janesville will appeal the decision and it was reported that Orlford and Evansville would also seek relief through the state commission.

The assessment session started when Supervisor Taylor took the figures of F. E. Livermore, Beloit assessor, amounting to $21,944,009 and added it to $27,557,056 and took the total Janesville figure compiled by Frank Smith of $29,630,756 and reduced it to $27,522,228. There was a hue and cry at once from Beloit supervisors.

The per cent. raise in the township or farm districts is figured at 22 per cent. in the villages and only 2.3 in the cities. The committee was unanimous on the contention $110,000,000 instead of $120,630,463 should be used as the basic figure for all the county, the aggregate total of Supervisor Taylor or the

FARM CREDIT AID URGED AT SESSION

Reduction of Freight Rates Also Declared Pressing Needed

(By Associated Press)

Cincinnati—Adaptation of banking machinery of the country to the credit requirements of the farm and reduction of freight rates on farm products were advocated as the main pressing needs of the agricultural industry, in an address Tuesday by Representative Sidney Anderson, chairman of the joint congressional commission of agricultural inquiry before the annual meeting of the National Milk Producers' Federation.

Pointing to the farmers' need for credit of a maturity corresponding to their turnover, and their ability to pay, Representative Anderson said, "I would permit all existing financial institutions, dealing directly with the public, including national and state banks, to make loans to farmers for periods of three months to six years. They should be able, at least, to re-discount the paper with the federal land banks or with the direct agents of these banks in making the loans. Suspension of the present Gazette Printing Company teams in the city bowling league was ordered by the board of directors of the Janesville Bowling Association at a meeting Monday night. The action it is explained, came after every opportunity had been given the teams to show up at the alley for regular games.

By the plan of the directors, these teams will be reorganized in order to keep the league intact with eight teams. This will be done in time for Wednesday night's games, it is said. Schedule books will continue to be used until the league situation is smoothed out.

WEST POINT COACH

INTO DISCARD SOON

Baltimore, Md.—In Army circles it is thought probable that when the 1922 football season rolls around the coaching of the soldier eleven will be in other hands than those of Maj. Charles E. Harrelson, who has directed the Army Gridiron since the last war.

Major Harrelson, who has directed the Army Gridiron since the last war, has been promoted to refer all home games of the R. F. B. to him now out with the team, coaching them.

In an endeavor to get the full support of the business men of Janesville, 800 letters are being sent out this week asking for support. Girls with tickets will canvas the city every day for the benefit of the team.

The girls, while not overdriven as far as large scores are concerned, were none the less decisive.

6 CASES TO TRIAL; 67 ON CALENDAR

Considered Record Among Circuit Courts of Wisconsin.

Out of 67 cases listed on Rock County circuit court calendar, trials have been held in but two cases thus far, juries drawn for trials in four other cases, a total of but six litigations for a jury during a term of court. In the 42 other cases there were either pleas of guilty, agreements of guilty, or stipulations of guilty, or presentation of the case before the court or complete settlement was effected.

This is considered a record among circuit courts in Wisconsin.

Agreements which ended in stipulations of dismissal of the cases, without a court hearing, were made in 20 of the cases. Settlement is under way in a number of other cases in which the jury was waived.

The Distance Claims.

Four railroad cases were on the calendar for this week. Three were settled Monday afternoon and in the fourth case a conference will be held this week for settlement. The average jury trial takes one and a half days and the expense of the jury is approximately $100 a day. It is estimated that the settling of the cases thus far has saved Rock county in court costs about $10,000.

"We have had excellent success with the cases for the attorneys have cooperated effectively in urging fair and equitable settlements," advised Judge Grimm.

Cases on Calendar.

A jury will hear the case of Halstead and Wall starting Wednesday.

A jury was drawn to hear the promissory note suit brought by H. A. Von Owen, Beloit, against H. W. Adams, Beloit attorney and W. S. Perriro. This case is set for trial on December 3.

The damage suit of Rose Hansen against Scott Hatch et al. for damages will be tried by a jury December 10.

A fourth jury was selected to try the $500.00 damage suit brought by the Edgerton Highway Trailer company against the Jamesville Electric company for fire damages.

These four cases are all that remain on the jury calendar of the circuit court.

JANESVILLE HAS BIG DELEGATION AT WAUSAU MEET

Having made an enviable record as having the second largest delegation at the conference, 23 boys and girls of the county returned Monday morning from Wausau, where they attended the Old Timers and Boys conference of the state.

The Deacon Basker of the Baptist church, who went as advisor, says Rock county's delegation was the second largest there, Marathon county having the largest.

R. A. Waite of the International Sunday School Association and Mr. Lamoreau, Chillicothe, were chief speakers.

The young women who went from this city were: Agnes Genesee Hughes, Helen Fellows and Frances Frazee, Congregational church; Irene Gardner and Jessie Johnson, Presbyterian; Helen and Winifred Wilcox, Baptist; Glenys Townsend and Helen Lewis, Methodist; Genevieve Jensen, Norwegian; and Esther Blair, Trinity Episcopalian.

BABCOCK TESTIMONY DECLARED NOT TO BE AGAINST FILLED MILK

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Madison—Reports that filled milk is not altogether nutritious and a wholesome food were not made, by attorneys for milk product companies, in erroneous and not in conflict with testimony presented in the hearing before Judge A. G. Zimmerman to determine facts in the suit against the state law prohibiting manufacture and sale of compound milk products in Wisconsin.

Testimony of Dr. Stephen Motil Babcock, noted scientist, had little bearing on the case and did not tend to prove filled milk to be an undesirable food, Mr. W. Jackman, attorney for the Carnation Milk Products company, said. He declared that no word of evidence had been entered to indicate that the milk compounds were any other than wholly nutritious and wholesome.

Evidence of Dr. J. E. Nelson on experiments made with skimmed milk and not filled milk, according to Mr. Jackman, skimmed milk has the fat constituent completely removed while filled milk, he explained, has a substitute fat which replaces the original but fat of milk. This distinction is said to have a distinct bearing on the nutritive value of the products.

Tuesday's testimony by members of the force of the dairy and food commissioner is expected to end the hearing to determine facts before the case goes to the supreme court for a decision.

CONTINUE BOOZE CASE UNTIL DEC. 5

Amendment of his sentence by Judge H. L. Macfield to make him eligible for parole was denied in the court of appeals.

Both were brought to the station and released after being warned by Chief Charles Newman.

"We cannot get work and we stole to keep warm," was the plea offered.

(Continued from Yesterday.) George accepted the over admiration cautiously, not forgetting what he had said yesterday, what Sylvia had said. "Who was Rogers so friendly all at once?" "What prep? Where'd you play?" "Line or backfield?"

The rapidity of the questions lessened his discomfort. How he must make his future exceptionally full so that it might submerge the past of what he couldn't speak without embarrassment. In this instant, Rogers helped him out, and a bound around.

"Never went to any school for long." George pondered his kind act and his fashion as he excused himself and walked on to his lodging. There was actually something to hide, and Rogers admitted it, and was willing to lend a cloak. He could guess why. Because Green was bothering with him, had condescended to be seen on the street with him. George's vision broadened.

He locked himself in his room and, despite his scruples, Scolic's provocative features seemed clearer. For a long time he stared hungrily. He had an absurd impression that he had already advanced toward her. Perhaps he had in view of what had happened that afternoon.

His determination, as well as his strength had clearly attracted Bally. Yet that Bally had practically assured him he would enter college, had made an ally of the careful Rogers, and aroused the admiration of such sub-Freshmen as were in town. It became clear that if he should be successful at football he would achieve a position of prominence from which he could choose friends useful here and even in the vital future after college.

His planning grew more practical. If football was the goal of which he knew himself he could do what he thought necessary. Anew—anything, concerning horses, for instance, hunting, polo? The men interested in horses would be the rich, the best—he choiced a trifling over the qualification—the financial and social leaders of the class. He would have that over his sleep. He would know when he would be successful. Still at games, he hazarded, would make it easier, had he thought to work his way through.

Whatever taste such cold calculation brought him destroyed by staring at Sylvia's remote beauty. It was to reach such a goal he would have to use every possible short cut, no matter how unlovely it might be.

He found that, beginning a radical alteration of Scolic's studies, the blotter was spattered with ink. Papers littered the desk and drifted about the floor. Everything within reach of the tutor's hands was disarranged and disreputably untidy. Bally appeared incomparably more comfortable.

The course opened with a small lecture delivered while the attenuated man limped up and down the cluttered room.

"Don't fancy," he began, "that you have found 'football' a key to the scholastic labyrinth."

"The Love Pendulum"

By MARION RUBINCAM

XXXV. AN ANSWER. Was it really true? What was behind Winthrop's letter? Did he want to be free—or did he really think that I wanted my freedom since I seemed to be going about in such a frivolous manner? Or was it the beginning of a re-action on his part?

"Win never believed I could stay away from him, or keep silent so long. He was always sure of my love, entirely too sure. I made the enormous mistake of giving him all he wanted and more than he wanted. It is fault of my type as I know it. I sacrificed everything for my love of him and found my greatest pleasure in delusion."

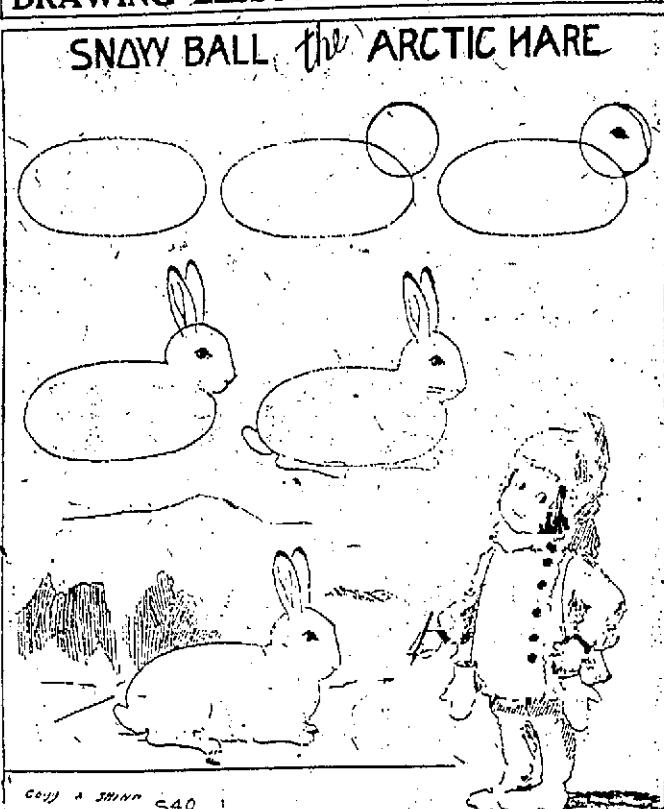

Had he been another sort, that would have made us happier, but his happened to be the type that finds zest in the unattainable. That was Gwen's great hold over him, but I could not see it—I was too jealous, too easily worried. Gwen would be charming to him, and nothing could be than he had only her friendship—and that she shared with a great many other men. Gwen was always beyond his reach, always to be sought after, never to be had.

And I did not realize this until long after. If I had, I would have profited by her example—and would not have been so jealous.

Colin and another illumination came that afternoon. He had been so busy when I interrupted him at noon that he had sent me away almost at once after luncheon, promising to come late in the afternoon to talk over the next step. He did not come until nearly six, and he joked thoroughly tired out.

"I said I would not answer until you came." I began. "So I haven't. Now what shall I say?"

DRAWING LESSONS FOR OUR KIDDIES

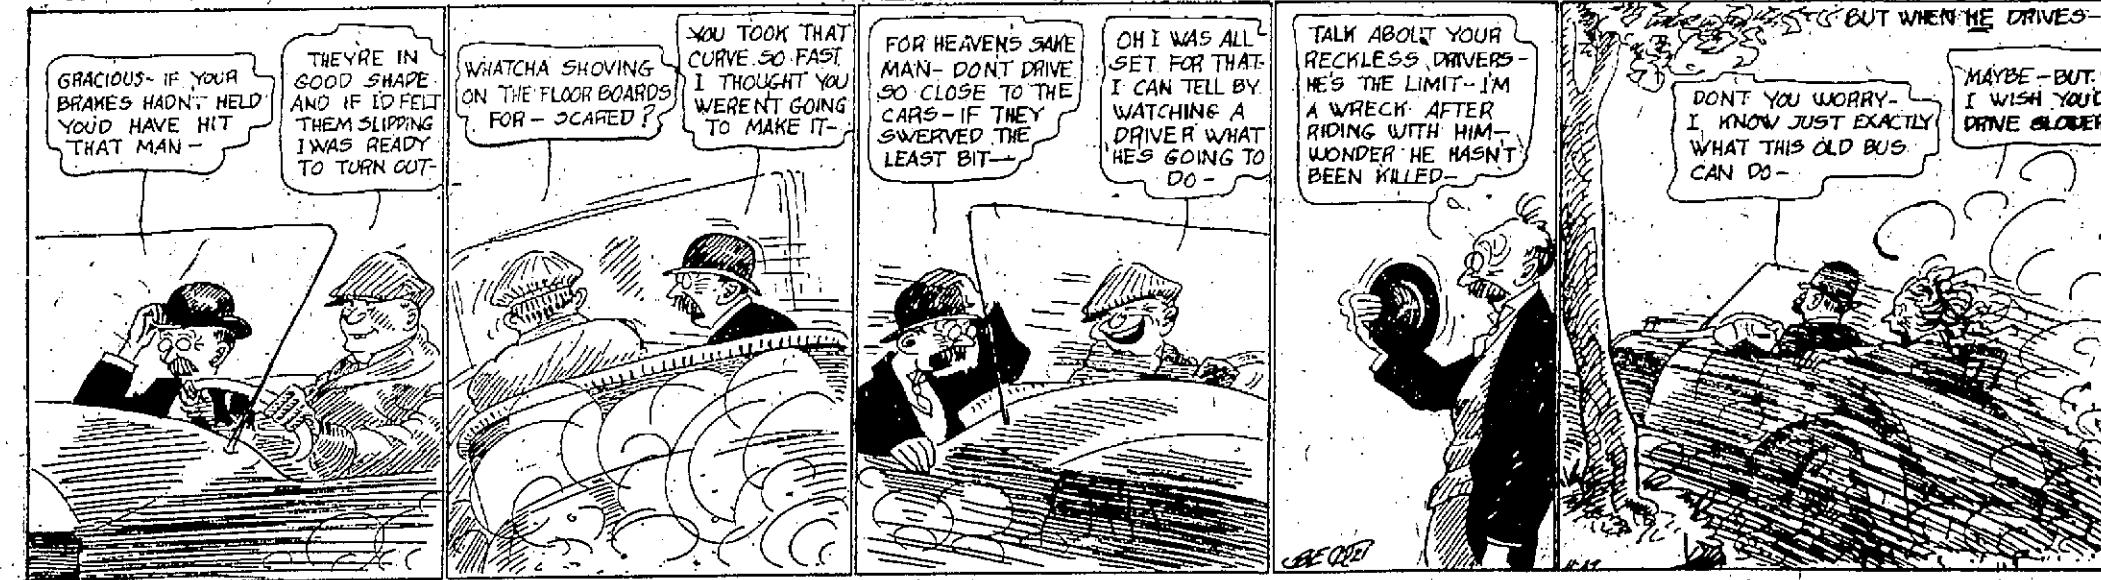

"Every story you read is about Peter-Rabbit," said the little Eskimo. "Snow Ball is just as interesting as Peter-Rabbit and by far more handsome a fellow than Peter. But he does not have so many friends, for he lives far up in the Frozen North. He has a wonderful coat of fur, which is snow white, except the tips of his ears, and they are black."

They've started a School for Charm. Funny things that! Charm used to be something which was slowly acquired, like the shape of your nose. Sort of a character profile, as it were. But now you get it in a dozen or so lessons. In you go, all raw ingredients—and then out you come, coated with finesse and beauty, a regular Human Magnet. Great idea!

Speaking of Charm—Once upon a time when we were kids we saw a circus in Fisher's Field. Of course it wasn't any real production but it suited us all right. Billy White made a dandy coyote when he crawled under that old skin his Uncle Fred had shot that fall. His voice was changing and you'd have sworn he was a real coyote. By the same simple expedient Fat Haley became a brown bear and Ned Higgins a mountain goat. Snakes were easy. Our garden was, plain 'ill' ole white male he as you did in last night's Glamor." "Just a minute," replied the editor. "Yes, that School of Charm is a great idea. I haven't a doubt it will produce some wonderful effects, if only it only the colors don't run!"

ASSOCIATION IDEA ONLY IMPROMPTU

President Has Worked Out No Details: Borah Charge Without Cause.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette. Washington.—President Harding has worked out only in principle the project for a continuous conference of nations. The criticism of Senator Borah, therefore, that the talk of "association of nations" could only be "the last of nations under another roof" is unfortunate, based upon inadequate information.

This correspondent has the highest authority for making the foregoing observation. The truth is Mr. Harding did not plan deliberately to interest a world organization into the press at this time. He has had a question of the regular conference with Washington correspondent last Friday, and the initiative was entirely with the latter. The impromptu "answer" was indeed the president's, but Friday.

This is Mr. Harding's thought: Every conference makes its own rules. Every conference would recognize the individual members as representing sovereign countries. There would be no collective body greater than the individual governments but each would exercise the sovereign right of agreement or disagreement. And about the only thing that might eventually be suggested is a declaration by each nation of its willingness to withhold aggressive action until the stated meeting of nations in an emergency meeting shall have been summoned.

No "League of Nations."

Anybody who says that Mr. Harding has made an organization like the present League of Nations will find that notion dissipated when the president makes known the details of his plan. Nor does the president feel that he would be creating a rival to the League of Nations.

Since the United States government has definitely abandoned the idea of membership in the League of Nations, in its present form it would be illogical, say Mr. Harding's friends, to find the president proposing another organization with similar rules and regulations and with merely another name.

This much the new plan would have in common with the idea of nations in common of object, namely, prevention of war by having frequent International conferences. But that object has been sought through one form or another for generations and the feeling in administration quarters is that there cannot be any converging to express in some form the aspiration of the American people for a common understanding among the nations of the world.

its report; and to reserve the right to act on the report as their respective interests may seem to demand. (This principle is already embodied in thirty treaties negotiated by Secretary Bryan, and ratified by the United States Senate.)

Right to create a council of countries to consider and report on questions of a non-justiciable character.

Arbitration of Differences

"Ninth, to arbitrate differences of an international character not otherwise provided for and in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, to submit them to the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague

Twelfth, to set up an international court of justice"

The foregoing formula has in it many more things probably than would be attempted at the outset. And Mr. Harding, it can be stated, positively, is unlikely to clutter up the discussion with too many details. He believes that the first big problem is international agreement. Nations must first and a way to sit down together peacefully to talk over the affairs of the world which happen to threaten its peace. They have found quite informally a way to discuss naval armament. Why shouldn't the same procedure be used to discuss other international matters?

Mr. Harding's Thought

This is Mr. Harding's thought: Every conference makes its own rules. Every conference would recognize the individual members as representing sovereign countries. There would be no collective body greater than the individual governments but each would exercise the sovereign right of agreement or disagreement. And about the only thing that might eventually be suggested is a declaration by each nation of its willingness to withhold aggressive action until the stated meeting of nations in an emergency meeting shall have been summoned.

No "League of Nations."

The important thing of the outside is simply to set up a machinery for calling international conferences. That machinery is so simple that it is expected arrangements for it can be made at the present conference on limitation of armaments. That is as far as the whole thing goes. The very first thing for the president is to converge to express in some form the aspiration of the American people for a common understanding among the nations of the world.

Three of the bulls were purchased by farmers to place in their herds and were accepted and taken home immediately after the sale. Of the 20 remaining for the test 23 were declared tubercular and were sent to the slaughterhouse in Milwaukee.

The question now is how many of the grade animals were also tubercular and are contaminating every healthy herd which have entered the state those who have accepted the grade animals may have to go to the slaughterhouse to test them.

WHO SAID THE BAKE-RITE WAS BUSTED?

It Took A Small Mind To Figure Out Such A Fairy Tale

Within the past two weeks we have built on additional floor space, installed a Middleby-Marshall Oven with a capacity of 345 loaves of bread, making our baking capacity now 645 loaves at one baking. Our entire plant is working days, nights, and even Sundays to supply the demand for our quality product.

The Bake-Rite Is Not Busted

Convincing proof that we stand high in the public esteem may be noted from the fact that Mrs. W. Hazen, 316 N. Terrace street, dropped in today to tell how she had just cut off a piece of fruit cake purchased here over a year ago and found it to be just as good and wholesome as the day she bought it. Only the use of high quality ingredients and skillful mixing and baking could produce such quality. So that everyone may enjoy this delicious fruit cake this Christmas we have priced it practically at cost, 35c per pound.

The Bake-Rite Is Not Busted

Milk, butter, eggs and flour are the main ingredients used by bakers to produce wholesome food. It is impossible to produce wholesome food when substitutes are used for milk, butter or eggs. There is positively no substitution here.

Cronin's Guernsey Milk from the best Guernsey herds in Rock County, in every instance tuberculin tested and handled in the most modern and sanitary milk and ice cream plant in Southern Wisconsin, is used exclusively.

Only genuine butter and fresh eggs are used and these are secured from sources of supply that must meet our exacting standards.

The Bake-Rite Is Not Busted

Prejudice and ignorance cannot stand before the truth and quality will not down. This statement is turned back on the narrow mind—The Bake-Rite is not busted.
